

Pfizer Support to European and International Patient Organisations in 2009

The EFPIA Code on Relationships between the Pharmaceutical Industry and Patient Organisations came into force across Europe on 1st July 2008. Pfizer has been at the forefront of industry transparency efforts and we fully support the Code and its aims of enhancing transparency and ensuring that relationships between the pharmaceutical industry and patient organisations take place in the most open and ethical manner, in full recognition of the independence of patient organisations.

European-level patient organisations are often umbrella groups, representing the interests of their member organisations, such as national patient organisations for a particular disease or condition. They play a crucial role in debates on health policy and related issues with European policymakers and other stakeholders, providing the unique, and critical, perspective of the patient.

Financial support, such as through educational grants to support -giving full independence - an organisation's core activities or for specific projects, only forms one aspect of our relationship with patient organisations. Increasingly, we are building relationships with patient organisations who are interested in working collaboratively with us to find new solutions to old problems. We are proud to work with many patient organisations, including those listed below, and our partnerships are open and transparent. These are 2-way relationships – we learn from each other, and our common viewpoint is that healthcare, to be effective, should be patient-centred.

The below list contains information on the support Pfizer has provided to European-level and international patient organisations in 2009. It follows the standards set out in the EFPIA code of practice governing relationships between the pharmaceutical industry and patient associations. Information to European-level and International patient organisations relevant to other countries is cross-referenced. Information on support to national patient organisations can be found via local Pfizer organisations in respective European countries.
